MY DEFINITION OF LOVE
Love, these days, opens vastly in me, star colanders in wintry sky, a rough breeze’s caress of hillside meadows, grass blades flipping, shining, parting my hair in a million different ways.